

Brighid Sammon

Senior Urban Planner, Hansen Partnership; Young Planner of the Year 2016

Brighid Sammon is Senior Urban Planner at Hansen Partnership. She graduated from RMIT's bachelor of Urban and Regional Planning program in 2014 with first class honours, and was awarded an Academic Excellence Award for the degree. She worked within the statutory planning team at the City of Greater Geelong before joining Hansen in 2015. Brighid has a keen interest in social planning and, in particular, in housing affordability. She has worked on a variety of projects in both the statutory and strategic planning spaces, including on the Nightingale projects where she has become adept at negotiating complex planning environments. In 2016, Brighid was named the Planning Institute of Australia's Victorian Young Planner of the Year.
